ARE YOU PUTTING YOUR FINANCIAL AFFAIRS IN THE BEST POSSIBLE HANDS?

If you own substantial assets, you may want full-time professional assistance in the management of your financial affairs. Such services can make your financial strategy more effective — save you time and worry — and pay for themselves many times over. We believe these criteria should guide you in choosing the best possible investment manager, executor or trustee:

1. Will you have a sound over-all financial plan?... Not just an investment program or insurance plan, but a coordinated, long-range plan encompassing your total assets. Your financial manager should be prepared to work knowledgeably with you and your attorney in developing a plan which will take into account your current and future investment objectives, tax circumstances, and family requirements if something happens to you.

2. Will your financial plan be carried out by an organization of specialists? An organization with diverse, in-depth financial management capabilities is required today. Unlike individuals, corporate organizations are never too busy when you need them, never ill or away, never subject to the laws of mortality. Moreover, the combined judgment and total approach of their specialists usually cost no more.

3. Will the management of your personal financial affairs be the organization's primary concern? You will want the satisfaction of knowing that the organization you select concentrates on personal investment and trust services — that the management of your financial affairs is not merely a part-time concern.

4. Will you be getting comprehensive financial management? You should not have to turn to multiple sources for varied services. Trusts, for example, can offer significant tax advantages and provide continuity of financial administration. Has your financial manager had experience as executor in settling substantial estates? Will he provide tax assistance, custody for your securities, handle all administrative details for you?

5. Will you have access to special advisory services? A fully-equipped financial management organization will have its own research capabilities on which to base investment decisions. But you may have important investments outside conventional securities — such as oil and gas investments, or real estate holdings. However diverse your interests, your financial manager should be capable of providing broad spectrum service.

6. Can you get assistance outside New England? Now, or in the future, you, or members of your family, may require regional help or attention to private investments outside New England. Will your financial manager be organized to provide it?

7. Will personalized banking services be available to you? Ideally, your financial management should be integrated with your personal banking requirements, to provide the advantages of income collection and deposit — payment of invoices — investment of short-term cash. Truly personalized banking can go far beyond checking account and loan services. You will want people who can look after matters if you're away, handle domestic payrolls, take care of unusual requests.

8. ... And most important, what about the people who serve you? The sensitive management of your financial affairs will call for a rare blend of up-to-the-minute professional skills and old-fashioned human qualities — judgment — discretion — tact — the personal touch. Human understanding should be at the heart of your relationship with the people serving you.

To meet the demands of its customers during nearly a century of experience, Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company has developed an organization with just such criteria in mind.
